That's you and your wife and the baby. Just a nice little family, and not one could be spared. Now, if about this time your wife seems a little dull and tired and not quite so "chippy" as she used to be, don't think she means to be fussy. It is probably just because she feels weak and tired out. If you ask her, she won't confess that anything troubles her, but just the same, she undoubtedly has headaches, backaches, dyspepsia or some other symptoms of KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE. Now, when you go home tonight, step into the druggist's and buy a bottle of

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for $1.00 and take it home with you. Tell her you know it will do her good and make the baby better, and she will try to please you. After a few doses she will feel so much better that whenever any one of you three don't feel just right, she will be the first one to run to the medicine closet for the Remedy.

It's just as good for a woman or a child as for a man. It is pleasant to take, and will stop at once all the little ailments which are the forerunners of KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE. Have a bottle in the house anyway.

Drop us a postal for free Booklet A, giving fuller instructions and testimonials.

OXFORD COUNTY ADVERTISER FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1901.

Written for the Advertiser. Independence Day.

More throughout our glorious land than in any other country, the people of this country are proud of their independence.

Life and limb and heart and hand, I shout a shout of praise, for the brave men who gave us our independence.

Before the sun sets on this day, let us all stand together and give thanks to the brave men who gave us our independence.

Oh, Marion was brave enough, and Washington was brave enough, and all the brave men who gave us our independence.

But others, "just as warm," and ready for any sacrifice, and for their country's good will send strange rockets to the skies, in patriotic mood.

"Can't I offer you any refreshments?" she asked.

"No, thank you, but I went on."

"I'm glad to hear that," she said, "but I don't see why you should go like this." She stammered. "I don't see how I have been cruel."

"It is so hard for you to be cruel," he said, "it has always been so for me."

"You could have cried out."

"Are you the sorrier for having seen Helena?" she temporized.

"I am glad of it," he answered.

"Could I have told her you were anything but one of the boat hands? Could I have told her you were her mother's first husband?"

"The possibility that there was something you had to tell is what brought me here," he said.

"He was in the hall."

"Is there nothing you have to tell me?" he asked. "Nothing at all?"

"No," she answered, "nothing."

He came back and threw himself into the chair before the table. His hat fell to the floor; he let his head rest on his rule scarred hands that were clasped together on the table.

Miss Martha moved softly about the room, arranging and rearranging the things. It was good for him to suffer. When she got to the rose jar, she noiselessly raised the lid. She told herself she did this every day.

His suffering must be intense. She remembered him when his father used to give him money which he wasted. She remembered when he gambled and lied to Mary and neglected her till she had to leave him.

She folded up her sewing, being careful to stick the needle so that it would not come unthreaded.

She went out into the kitchen and got a glass of milk and a few of the cakes she had baked for the picnic. When she came back to the parlor, Borland was as she had left him.

"I thought," she said, "you might like a glass of milk."

He raised his head.

"That was very kind," he said.

When she pressed the cakes on him, he took one and laid it beside the glass on the table.

"I think I'll be going," he said. "I only had an hour off. I'm glad I came."

"I'm glad to hear you say so," Miss Martha returned grimly. "I suppose I shall see you again some time. The world is a small place, and we go in a circle."

"Yes," he replied stupidly. Then he faced her. "I am glad you did as you did," he said, "and not let her know I was her mother's first husband. I am glad you did as you did. I've done wrong in many ways in my time, but I think we pay full price for a good deal of what we do in this world. That's sentiment, I suppose, and I don't look very sentimental, do I?" He looked hungrily into her eyes. "Is there anything you have to tell me—anything?"

She shook her head. He laughed. "Well, goodbye," he said. "Goodbye!" He went lingeringly from the house as though he hoped there might be a word from her to detain him. But the word was not spoken, and he passed out into the street. His hands were clasped behind him, his eyes directed toward the Tecumseh.

Miss Martha seated herself in the chair he had occupied. She sat there a long time. As in a dream she ate her dinner. After that she sewed, but restlessly. She hoped Helena would not come again; she hoped Mr. Mast would stay away; it was almost as though she resented their possible coming. Toward night she told herself that the morrow would be a wearying day and that she would do better to take more than the usual amount of rest. So she went up to her room. She paused at the window to look out. She saw the red light of the Tecumseh.

"Was there anything I had to tell him? Margy and he used to talk me over?"

She sat down at the window. She rested her head against the window frame. It grew darker and darker outside, quite dark. The damp smell of night came to her. The sounds in the village close by became less. Raff's tavern let out a couple of roisterers who burst into song and then drifted away toward town. If Raff's tavern was closing, it must be 12 o'clock. In that case she had been looking at the boat light four hours.

The morning was misty. The picknickers said that was all the better for a water trip. The ashway was trodden by happy feet that hurried to the Tecumseh.

Helena stopped at the cottage with her lover.

"Why, auntie," she exclaimed, "have you a headache?"

"I never felt better in all my life," Miss Martha protested.

"I don't believe it," Helena whispered to her lover. "She's afraid I'll be anxious if she owns to the truth. That's the way women are."

"Deceptive," he laughed fondly.

On the boat the Rev. Mr. Mast awaited Miss Martha. "I think everything will go nicely," he said.

Miss Martha nodded vaguely. For the first time she thought that it was rather effeminate in a man to pay so much attention to small details. She hunted up her Sunday school class. They started at 8 o'clock. By noon they were on the bar.

The mist had not lightened, and the sun refused to do more than make the world a great opal.

At 3 o'clock they were out of sight of land, if land could have been sighted in this density, and the Tecumseh was rocking strangely. And at 3 o'clock the captain, with a sudden, tense look, decided that the mist growing heavier, it was scarcely adding to the pleasure of the party to go much farther. As it was, a fog was forming, and they would not reach home till 8 o'clock.

But it was all very cheerful, and Helena and Maxwell and two or three other pairs of lovers had nooks to themselves and would have liked it to continue indefinitely.

Miss Martha had been prominent all day with the congregation. Then her class had given her much to do, it being of boys many of whose parents had not come, but intrusted their children to her care.

"Can I see you a minute, auntie?"

She was really very tired when late in the afternoon she went to a side of the boat a little removed from the people.

There was a dove in a cage hanging above her. She looked up to it, smiled and spoke to it, it was so pretty.

She seated herself on a camp stool and folded her hands. The dove made a mournful sound. The swish of the water was loud. She was hummed by the mist.

The wind seemed to rise all at once. "The boat will stay at the wharf all night," she told herself. "I should think they would have to have two lights instead of one on such a night." There was the scraping of a camp stool near her. Mr. Mast had looked for and found her.

"Miss Penfold," he said, seating himself beside her, "a picnic is a circus, as some of your boys would say. I don't know how it is with you, but one picnic takes more out of me than delivering four sermons a day, as I have done on one or two occasions."

Sabbath School Convention.

Little Androscooggin Valley Sunday School Association Meets at Norway.

Annual meeting was held with the Second Congregational church of Norway at corner of Main and Paris streets in Norway village on Friday of last week. Three denominations were present representing Sabbath schools in five villages. It was a small attendance.

The opening devotion was conducted by Rev. Arthur Varley, pastor of Bethel Congregational church. President E. C. Bowler of Bethel presided.

The address of the forenoon was by I. N. Halliday of Portland, field worker of the Maine State Sunday School Association, on the relations of Church and Sabbath School. He regards the school as a department of the church, to be controlled by the church, cared for and provided with means and appliances by the church, and to be used by the church. Any revenues of the Sabbath school should be for the support of the church and the little folks who give a penny should do it with the idea that they are contributing to the support of the church. The rising generation should be educated to support the church. As the Sabbath school is the recruiting ground of the church, it is the duty of the church to see that in its school work the children are selected and presented simply, right desires inspired, responsibility wisely placed and the young people trained to give expression to desires in self activity.

Dinner was served in the dining-room, and later, a supper in the same place. Visitors who needed accommodation over night were entertained by brethren of three denominations.

At the opening of the afternoon session a praise service was led by Rev. Alexander Hamilton, pastor of the Methodist church at Mechanic Falls.

At the business session there were elected:

President—Rev. Arthur Varley, Congregationalist, Bethel.

Vice-Presidents—All superintendents of other Sabbath schools in the association.

Secretary and Treasurer, Charles E. Tolman, Baptist, South Paris.

Executive Committee—Rev. R. F. Rickett, Methodist, Norway; J. E. Murch, Baptist, South Paris; George A. Wilson, Congregationalist, South Paris.

On motion of Mr. Varley it was voted to amend the constitution so as to have one session yearly and one in about six months from date.

Mr. Halliday conducted an experience meeting.

Rev. Bates S. Rideout, pastor of Norway Congregational church, thought that the way to secure the attention of restless boys and girls was for the teacher to be wide awake, and instantly ready to put a question to the one that is getting restless, and the question needn't be directly on the lesson Scripture. It can be made to illustrate any moral truth. Rev. Mr. Varley said that one of the two most common errors of teachers are insufficient preparation and a lack of interest in the scholars during the other.

At the close of the week, Rev. Abel W. Pottle, pastor of South Paris Methodist church, advocated more teachers' meetings, as preparation for the Sabbath work in the class; he has the class meeting made to considerable extent a

A Remarkable Reunion

There was a notable reunion of the children of David A. and Abigail Whitney held in Boston, Mass., Sunday, the 16th inst., at the home of Mrs. Josephine Whitney. This family originally consisted of eight children, five sons and three daughters. Of this number six are still living, four sons and two daughters.

This reunion was remarkable because of the presence of the oldest son, Allen F. Godwin, who for 37 years was unheard from. This son left his home in 1844, enlisted in the regular army and went with his regiment to the Mexican war. From that date to June 14th, 1901, a space of 57 years, he was absent from home, and for 37 years, lost to mother, brothers and sisters.

Upon his return he found that his little sister Elmira had grown to be an aged gray-haired grandmother, his little brothers, Charlie, George and Orin, grown old waiting for the return of their brother. He also found a loving sister Josephine, 52 years of age, whom he had never seen. But the mother, who had waited so anxiously and lovingly for her first born, he did not find, for her eyes had grown dim after the long vigil of 55 years and she fell on sleep 2 years before his return, at the age of 89. This reunion was halloed by sacred memories of the past. The absence of the mother was keenly felt, but there was gladness and joy for the presence of the living.

The sumptuous dinner, prepared by the youngest sister, Mrs. Josephine Whitney, was greatly enjoyed by all. The occasion was still further gladdened by the singing of sacred hymns and Divine worship. Patriotic songs kindled enthusiasm, and speeches made by the brothers, Allen, Charles, George and Orin, caused all hearts to swell with emotion and strengthened desires for great and noble things.

There were present of this family Rev. Allen F. Godwin of Centerville, Ind., and his son, Rev. Ivan R. Godwin of Mexico, Ind.

Charles O. Godwin of Waterford, Geo. H. Godwin and wife of Brockton and their son, Geo. W. Godwin of Middleton; also their son, Allen H. Godwin, and grandson, Morritt of Brockton; Orin M. Godwin and son Abbott of Brockton, Mass.

Mrs. Elmira Clarry and daughter, Mrs. Maude E. Lovejoy, of Boston, and Mrs. Josephine Whitney and son, Rev. L. Capen, of Boston, Mass.

The sum of the ages of the brothers and sisters is 887 years, an average of 64 years, 10 months. The oldest brother, Allen F. Godwin, will visit several weeks among relatives in Massachusetts and Maine, then return to his home in the West.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Make weak kidneys—they are not a new medicine—not an experiment—they've been tested and thousands endorse their merit. Here's a case of it:

Mr. J. W. Parker, carpenter in the wood turning department of the Fitchburg Car Shop, Fitchburg, Mass., says: "In the month of February, 1896, I was asked by a gentleman who called on me to publicly give my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. What I gave him for publication. I was interviewed by the Fitchburg papers. I was interviewed a second time over two years afterwards when I gave them the following: 'Ever told me your original statement appeared in the Fitchburg papers. I have been repeatedly asked by people in the shop where I work, on the street, and by callers at my house if the said statement were true. I often wished to appear as an endorser of Doan's Kidney Pills. Being the coming year I want it thoroughly understood that they proved of great benefit and from my experience I can scientifically say they are one patent medicine upon which people can depend to do as represented.'

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Charles H. Stevens of Andover has an increase of pension, $30.

The annual meeting of the Oxford County Medical Association will be held at Mechanic Falls, on Monday, July 1st, at 11 a. m. Business, election of officers. Papers, Dr. C. D. Hill, of Bethel, will present a paper upon the "Treatment of Abortion when Inevitable," and Dr. C. B. Sylvester, of Harrison, one upon "Toxic Food." After the papers, reports of interesting cases will be in order.

These be commencement days. A lot of youths and maidens are bidding farewell to the colleges. Throughout the summer they will enjoy a sensation of possessing degrees of their own. The great disillusion will come in the fall when the boys will go out into the cold, cold world. May the shock, when it comes, be no greater than they can bear. As for the girls, may the scholarship be no bar to matrimony. In other words, may they not be puffed up by the knowledge that they have more Greek and Latin and philosophy than most of their devoted admirers. Then all will be well.

Wednesday, the 19th, Judge Mattocks in the probate court in Portland was occupied in hearing the evidence and arguments in the petition of Lona M. Smith of Oxford, for the appointment of Quimby Millett of Oxford, as guardian of Elroy B. Frances, ten years old, the son of Harry Frances of Oxford, deceased. The petition was opposed by Levi Edwards of Otisfield, who has the child in his custody and who claims by virtue of the fact that he has cared for the child since the death of his parents, that he is entitled to retain the custody of the minor. H. M. Sylvester of Otisfield appeared for the remonstrants against the granting of the petition and George Hazen of Oxford for the petitioner.

The parade, this season, with the Walter L. Mac Shab, which exhibited at Lewiston, Me., on Wednesday, July 8, is especially noteworthy in that it contains more novelties than ever before, notably the Zouave Drum Corps, a troop of performing elephants, and an ancient historical Quebec Calash, properly costumed. The parade is said to be of unusual length and brilliancy, and worth going miles to witness. It will leave the show grounds at 10 o'clock a. m. A free exhibition will be given at the show grounds after the return of the parade. In order to give all a chance to see the grand exhibition of the "Congress of Nations" in the menagerie tent the doors will be open at 1 and 7 o'clock p. m. The show lot is Lees Park.

Reunion of Co. H, 17th Maine Reg. The annual reunion of Co. H, 17th Maine Regiment was held, June 18, at the house of Charles W. Sanborn in Otisfield. Those present were Thomas H. The day was a beautiful one, and after a beautiful dinner was served the usual business meeting was held in front of the house in the shade of the big elm. Geo. W. Rackliff was elected president and Charles W. Sanborn secretary for the next year. Letters were read from comrades who were unable to be there. It was voted to hold the next meeting at Sebago Lake some time next June. These reunions are looked forward to and enjoyed by the comrades very much. Still, there comes a sadness as each year they are called to record the death of one or more members, reminding them that the ranks are thinning out.

LYONS-BROWNE.

In Albany, at the home of Lewis Sawin, at high noon, Wednesday, June 12, occurred the marriage of Sewell A. Lyons and Winnifred Browne. Rev. F. B. Barton performed the ceremony, using the beautiful ring service.

The young couple were attended by Eddie Lyons and Levi Browne, brothers of the bride and groom, with Marion Bennett and Florence Browne, cousin and niece of the bride.

She wore no jewels, with the exception of one heavy gold bracelet, the gift of the groom. The groom wore conventional black and the bridesmaids wore white.

In the pleasant parlor of the bride's sister, Mrs. Martha Sawin, which had been prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreen in which was suspended a bell of pansies and other flowers, stood the happy pair, while the solemn words were said which bound them together for weal or woe. Then, after congratulations had been extended by the friends assembled, refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, etc., were served, after which the bridal party retired to the honeymoon suite.

The bride is a popular school teacher, having taught many terms here and been beloved by both parents and pupils. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her. Among the presents received by them were the following:

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Major G. A. Hastings of Bethel was in town, Saturday, on business.

Georgia A. Tucker of Norway has received a special pension of $8.

The next annual convention of the W. C. T. U. will probably be held in Norway.

All the ladies, instead of teachers, who go to the box supper on Pike's Hill, Friday evening, are to bring boxes.

Eva May Tibbets, daughter of C. C. Tibbets of Waterville, formerly of Norway, graduated from the Waterville High School in the scientific course, last week.

Agnes E. Sanborn graduated from Gorham normal school, last week, having completed the two-year course. An unusual circumstance was there being only one from Oxford county in the class.

Hazelhurst, overlooking Lake Pennesseewassee, formerly owned and built by Dr. Hazellott, with all modern improvements, will be sold at public auction, June 29, at 2 p. m. For particulars see adv. in another column.

Elmer Inzalls and Ben Aldrich up Sunday River, Riley Plantation, were in town, last week, to buy a horse. They report that there were eleven fishermen on the river, one day the week before. How many fish were caught they did not say, but it is safe to presume that some were got.

Twitcheil Brothers of Oxford have leased a store at Old Orchard and will run a fruit stand there during the summer, in addition to their regular business of peddling. They are planning to take advantage of the big time at the fair grounds, July 4th, and open their restaurant on the grounds.

Duffy's Jubilee, at the opera house, Thursday evening, June 20, was the liveliest show that has entertained Norwegians for a long time. There was something doing continually for two and a half hours. The show is given in three acts and is a far more interesting order. The story is of two men who innocently pay some attention to a woman who happens to be an actress and then try to live out of it when the wife of one and the sweetheart of the other ask questions. Of course they get mixed up in their falsehoods, and a tremendous family row results. The acting was good and active—no slow folks or sticks in that troupe of a dozen performers. During the performance sixteen specialties of various kinds were introduced and all were of the kind to go well with the rest of the evening's fun.

Sunday was children's day at the Congregational church. At the morning service the children were seated by Sabbath school classes to listen to the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Bates S. Rideout. It was from Matt. xxi. and the children that were crying in the temple and saying Hosanna to the son of David. In the evening a concert was given by a chorus of twenty-five children including a few of the larger girls. It was in reality a children's concert. To be sure, Mrs. Horne played the accompaniments and Miss Staples assisted them with a solo, but it was a children's concert and the fresh clear sweet young voices gave the audience such delight as they seldom get. The children did their individual work well; the chorus was every member eager for the singing, and while not allowed to strain their voices yet they put into the singing a vim and joyousness that delighted every one of us. We give the program:

Letter to Charles P. Barnes.
Norway, Me.

Dear Sir: H. M. Hooker & Co., Cooperstown, N. Y., have sold Devoe paint for 42 years. D. T. McGown, of that firm, built a house in '85 and painted Devoe, of course. The paint lasted ten years.

A year or two later, a neighbor built a house, and painted it lead and oil. The neighbor's house was repainted twice in the same time.

This looks as if the neighbor's house was painted three times in eight or nine years, and McGown's once in ten years. We are not quite sure—we tell the tale as it comes to us.

It is enough to say that Devoe lead and zinc lasts twice as long as lead and oil.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.

Jacobus-Chapman.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Chalmers Chapman, Bethel, was solemnized, Wednesday, the 19th, at high noon, the marriage of their daughter, Marion Elise, to George Jacobus of Garden City, N. Y., by Rev. Arthur Varley of Bethel. The ceremony was performed under a bower of roses and evergreens, and the delicious perfume of the fresh honey-loose blossoms filled the rooms and hallway.

The maid of honor, sister of the bride, was Cecile F. Chapman dressed in pink. The bridesmaids, dressed in white over pink, were Lotta T. Proctor of Waterville, Alice Barker, E. Louise Jacobus of Springfield, Mass., Margaret C. Thurston of Portland and Christine L. Chapman. The best man was Hannibal H. Hamlin, brother of the bride. The ushers were E. P. Fay of Springfield, Mass., Emory H. Sykes of Auburn, Granville A. Chapman, C. S. Jacobus of Springfield, Mass., and C. A. Kimball of Littleton, Mass., a Yale classmate of the groom.

The wedding march of Mendelssohn was played as they passed from the upper hallway. The bride was given away by her father and the Episcopal service with ring was used. The groom's present to the bride was a sun burst pin of pearls around a diamond center. The bride's presents to the maids were four-leaf clover gold pins, while the ushers received from the groom gold stick pins with gold knot and pearl centre. Only relatives and most intimate friends were present. But the deep interest of a large circle of acquaintances from near and far was clearly manifested by the large number of simply elegant and varied presents that lent additional charm and beauty.

After a wedding trip of several weeks and a sojourn at the sea shore, their future home will be in their newly built residence at Garden City, N. Y.

Camp Sunset, Greenwood.

This camp was built in the fall of 1899 on the shores of Hill pond near the road and a little way below Martin's. A good stable with four stalls has been built. The owners of the camp are H. F. Richardson, C. H. Seavey, Harry F. Wood and Asa Richardson of Norway and Edward E. Packard of Greenwood.

There is good trout fishing in the immediate vicinity and the pickered fishing in the pond is unsurpassed, occasionally a four-pounder being taken. The water has been stocked with salmon.

Recently F. Richardson and friends visited camp and caught 15 trout, one of which weighed 1½ pounds, and 17 pickered were caught.

Visits His Native Town

"My last visit to Maine was 25 years ago," said Senator Paris Gibson of Montana to a newspaper man after he had explained the objects of his present visit. "Last Saturday, I arrived in Brownfield. Very few of my old friends are now living. I went to Fryeburg and North Conway and also saw a few people whom I once knew. There is a marked change in these towns which has been produced on account of the tourist travel. What particularly attracted my notice was the rapid growth of trees of all kinds and I have been perhaps as much impressed with that as anything that I have seen. The pastures of my boyhood are now covered with thick forests. The lumber business in Maine will always be a great and profitable industry. All of the country between Portland and the White Mountains is one great growing forest, and the rapidity with which the trees grow surprises me."

Ninety-third Commencement.

At Bridgton Academy, last week, the opening feature was the baccalaureate sermon delivered, Sunday, the 18th, by Rev. D. B. Holt, of Bath, late of Bridgton. His discourse was founded on Luke 15. On Monday was the public examination of classes. On Tuesday afternoon was the Edward F. Fingree's Schemes.
A traveling companion of the late ex-Gov. Fingree says:

"Hazen S. Fingree went to South Africa largely for the purpose of putting into practical effect three gigantic schemes for the benefit of the people of Michigan."

"First. The reclamation of the immense pine waste in Michigan by planting trees. He went to the Bavarian black forest to expand this idea and overworked so much that he received his death."

"Second. The rotation of crops in Michigan. In pursuit of this scheme he went to Egypt where such a system is enforced by the government."

"Third. The transportation of every patriot Boer and his family who desired to come to the United States. He was his idea to interest some Michigan capitalists in the plan and provide lands for the Boers among the railroad systems."

Demand for Better Citizenship.

Kind friends, We greet you today as the fellow citizens of what we are proud to call the most prosperous, the most progressive, the grandest nation in all this wide world.

From the very first, the United States has had a glorious history, a history over which we, as true Americans, should ever rejoice. We are proud of our native land as the foremost in the cause of freedom and truth; and well may we point with pride to the "Stars and Stripes" as the emblem of that liberty, which every American so dearly loves and which has cost the life-blood of the noblest heroes the world has ever produced.

And although we claim to have reached the highest standard ever attained among the nations, and although we feel to rejoice over the glorious records of the past, yet, even amid the sounds of rejoicing and exultation of pride, there comes the timely warning of that still small voice, "Take heed lest you fall!"

We are living at an age when the tide of life is moving with awful rapidity and force; at an age when the surging mass of humanity is sweeping all before it in the blind rush for wealth and fame. And what grave thoughts of responsibility come to us when we remember that on the bosom of this turbulent ocean, rocking its rolling billows, rides in all her grandeur, the Ship of State.

O how important that there be standing at the helm a man who dares to be true; a man severely obedient to duty; a man who will stand at his post in the great crises through which every nation must pass, in short we may say, a man who is a man!

How important that we have to guide this nation in a course of safety, men of experience and good judgment; men who are willing to sacrifice all—even life itself—if need be, in order that we may hand down to our posterity the rich inheritance of a land of freedom and happiness!

Al, my friends, it is the truth and a painful truth, that we have in places of responsibility and power; men who can be bought for gold, men who can be lured from the path of honesty and truth by the enticements of vain glory and fleeting praise; men who have not the backbone to stand upright under the trust and honor placed upon them and who fall, the victims of self conceit.

And it is a truth, still more painful, that to-day we have in this land of liberty, men who will sell their votes, eye their freedom for a little money or a drink of rum. To-day we may find in every city hundreds of men who are compelled to vote just as their employers dictate or lose their position. Yet, who but themselves can be blamed for such a state of affairs? They have neglected to use their powers at the ballot box in the past, and now they find that even without a struggle they allowed themselves to be bound hand and foot by this vile monster of corruption and now do they feel the venom of hisfangs.

O how sad to find here in this land of education, this land that boasts in its fortification of schoolhouses, those who, in their ignorance, use their ballot as a deadly weapon in their own destruction; yet such is the fact.

Now, my friends, when facts like these are staring us in the face, can we remain at ease and let pass unheeded the demand for greater patriotism and better citizenship? Is it a demand which must be met and how shall we meet it?

The future of our country lies in the hands of the young people of to-day. It remains with us to determine what that future shall be, whether of glory and honor or shame and disgrace. It remains for us, as loyal Americans, to give our nation a history of which our descendants may long be proud. We can if we will.

What we need at the present time is the young man who is honest and intelligent, the young man who cannot be turned from the right by the temptations of bribery. We need the young man who has a mind of his own, who has his convictions of right, and who will stand to defend them. We want young men who are so broad-minded that they will rise above the privileges which are sure to confront every effort toward reform.

And what we have said concerning young men applies to young women as well. We hope that the time is not far distant when they shall have equal rights and privileges with men and that their restless energies will be a great power in our government. We want young people of this kind rise to assume the responsibility of guiding our nation, then no matter how many or how great the dangers of the course, we may feel confident that our grand old Union will ride their surges and gloriously she will move on through the ages to come as the leader in all progress and civilization!

Thomas R. Day.
Thomas Ricker Day of Bryant's Pond died in the Maine General Hospital at Portland, Wednesday, June 19, after having been there a month under treatment for Bright's disease. He was aged 64 years and 20 days, having been born in Woodstock in 1837. He was the son of Alexander and Eliza (Ricker) Day. With the exception of a short time in the West he always lived in Woodstock. He was a cattle dealer, wool buyer and butcher and was a successful business man.

Religiously he was interested in the welfare of the Universalist church. Politically he was from boyhood an ardent Republican and was influential in the councils of his party. He never sought office, yet his love for law and his was strong enough so that he was persuaded to serve eleven years as deputy sheriff.

Mr. Day was twice married. His first wife, Maria G. Farnham of Rumford. His second wife, Lizzie A. Gilbert of Lawrence, Mass., survives. He also left one son, a boy of 19 years.

Bad colds are the order of the day. Mrs. Alice Saunders is sick with one and our village doctor is kept busy.
Mrs. Ellen R. Millett entertains the ladies circle at her home on Farmers' Hill, next Tuesday afternoon and evening, July 2.

Children's Sunday, last Sunday, at the Congregational church. The children were in fine order. The church was handsomely trimmed with potted plants, ferns and flowers. Much credit is due the North Waterford day teachers and Mrs. Gilpatrick for conducting and managing things so well, also to the ladies of the church, Mrs. Fred Saunders, Mrs. Addison Holt, from home; Mrs. Fred Saunders, accompanist.

Children's Day.
The bright eager faces of the Sunday school children of North Waterford made a forgettable sight, the children on Sunday morning, June 23. The church was tastefully decorated by the young ladies of the school, the young men lending their assistance in gathering evergreen and flowers. A thick background of evergreen, proved a delightful contrast to the light dresses of the children when on the platform. At the back and sides was a low bank of flowers, while above their heads swung a basket of flowers. The columns on either side were wound with evergreen and daisy braids. The organ was converted into a mass of flowers.

The occasion was the observance of Children's day which had been postponed until this date so that wild flowers could be seen in the decorations. Under the direction of their superintendent, Mrs. Gilpatrick, and her able corps of helpers, a carol service "Looking Forward" had been prepared. Forty-six children, in the vestry, marched into the church from the center aisle, separated in front of the altar, then marched back to the rear by the side aisles then down the center aisle to their places in the center pews. Then followed songs, recitation, and a concert exercises such as children love. Every child did its part well even to the young misses who received the offering.

HARRISON.
Charles L. Laug will enter the University of Maine, next fall, for a four-year course.
John M. Johnson has been able to visit his farm in South Harrison. It was the first time his health would permit it for a long time. He lives in Bridgton.

W. H. Bailey harvested 847 pounds of good hay from a plot of ground 90 feet square. That is at the rate of 13,665 pounds to the acre, or a ton to twenty-four and one seventh square rods. He says that a second crop will be nearly as heavy. The ground has been in sod ten years and was recently top dressed heavily. The date of mowing was June 3. It would be interesting to know the kind of grass.

The E. K. Whitney place, "Hillside Farm," has been bought by Mr. B. Reed from Massachusetts.
Rev. George M. Woodwell of Bridgton delivered the annual memorial sermon before the Odd Fellows.

N. H. Seavey is making some repairs on his buildings. Mr. Seavey is in the Cumberland Superior Court.

George H. Greene of Otisfield has bought the C. P. Riggs farm near North Bridgton, and will soon move there. He is enlarging the house.
Charles A. Long has returned from a New Hampshire trip. He went from Portland where he was one of the talemans for the jury in the Graffam trial, and was peremptorily challenged by the defense.

Bridgton Academy seems likely to have an unusually large number of scholars from Harrison at the last term, as the school at its last annual meeting raised money to pay the tuition of scholars at the academy instead of maintaining a high school in town.

Schools in the village close, Friday.

The children's concert held, Sunday evening, June 23, was considered a success. The choir rendered excellent music and the little folks did their share. The audience was small owing to the inclemency of the weather.
